National Park Service designates New Castle as one of 38 Certified Local Governments

The National Park Service designated 38 communities from across the United States as Certified Local Governments (CLG) in 2016. There are now 1,966 communities that participate in the program, which provides local governments access to historic preservation guidance and grants. The current number of CLGs is a significant milestone as it also recognizes the 50th anniversary of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 that created the CLG program.

The CLG designation makes communities official partners in the federal historic preservation program, which engages local, state, and federal governments to promote historic preservation at the grassroots level. These communities gain access to expert technical historic preservation advice from the National Park Service and their respective State Historic Preservation Offices, as well as Historic Preservation Fund grants exclusively for CLGs.

"We are looking forward to working with these 38 newly certified communities to encourage historic preservation on a grassroots level," said Acting National Park Service Director Michael T. Reynolds. "The Certified Local Government program not only preserves social, cultural, and ethnic heritage of communities across the country, but also promotes local economic growth and job creation related to tourism and historic preservation."

Administered by the National Park Service through the states, the CLG program helps communities save their irreplaceable historic character through the identification, evaluation, and protection of historic properties. In order to become certified, a local government must meet several requirements, chief of which is a commitment to enforcing local and state historic preservation laws and establishing a qualified historic preservation commission. This local commitment is key to America's ability to preserve, protect, and increase awareness of our unique cultural heritage found in the built environment across the country.

Kruk to join CSN broadcast booth

The Phillies play their first Grapefruit League game in less than 20 days, which means their broadcast teams soon will be bringing the warmth and sunshine of Florida to the Delaware Valley.

John Kruk is the newest addition to the TV team. He agreed to terms with Comcast SportsNet in November, although CSN has not officially announced his hiring. Don't worry, Kruk will be joining Tom McCarthy, Ben Davis, Mike Schmidt and Gregg Murphy on TV in 2017.

In fact, the announcement is expected this week.

Cobblestones is growing!

Every Sunday morning, more than 825 "Cobbles" (plus 250+ Facebook followers) receive their weekly dose of New Castle's comings and goings, lite gossip with other good & interesting stuff!

Cobblestones is my "fun" project, a service to the community. There is no charge to community organizations for their listings but donations are welcome.

Keeping in mind the 'community fun philosophy' Cobblestones is free of political or social issue advertising.

Space for commercial/business ads require a donation of $50 to cover time and materials. That covers four random insertions.

Checks made to me personally.

Ads should be a moderate size. A jpg or PDF works the best. Let me know early in the week an approx. size with a final copy Thursday. If it's just a listing for "events", please send me copy as soon as possible.

Personally, I would like to thank everyone for your interest and participation in the growing Cobblestones family.

Anything I can do to help, please let me know.
