Twin Spans further offers superior logistics throughout the mid-Atlantic region and points beyond, with immediate access to I-95, I-295, I-495 and the Delaware Memorial Bridge.

Harvey, Hanna & Associates has now leased 584,217 SF of space at Twins Spans Business Park since March 2016.

Rehabilitation Plan Ready for Review

The National Park Service is excited to announce that the Environmental Assessment (EA)/ Assessment of Effect (AoE) was released for public comment on February 13, 2017. After strong interest from the public and the extensive incorporation of comments, the Sheriff's House Rehabilitation Plan outlines a building focused on park administration and public access..

Public participation has been vital to this planning process and the public is invited to review and comment upon the draft plan. The document is available on-line via the park's planning website (<http://parkplanning.nps.gov/SheriffsHouse>). A printed copy of the plan is available in the New Castle Visitor Center at The Arsenal 30 Market Street, New Castle,

A public information meeting will be held on Wednesday March 8th from 6:00pm - 7:00pm at the New Castle Court House
211 Delaware St, New Castle, DE 19720.

The meeting will include a brief presentation to describe the proposed alternatives and discuss the next steps in the process. There will also be time for interested individuals and organizations to ask questions and provide their thoughts, ideas, and concerns for the future use and management of the Sheriff's House. Posters and other information about the Sheriff's House will be available for the public to review and National Park Service staff will be on hand to answer questions and to accept public comments.

TAKE THE CHILL OFF

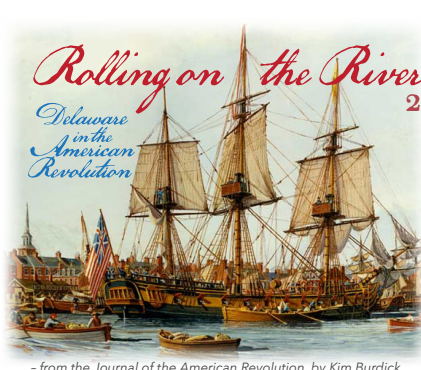

4 med. size sweet onions
 ¼ tsp Gravy Master
 2 pks Lipton's Onion Soup Mix slices of crusty Italian bread, 1/2-inch thick, toasted • slices of provolone cheese and either Gruyère or imported Swiss • S&P to taste • Peel and slice onions with the grain (not against grain as you would if cutting for sandwiches) in about ¼ inch width the full length of the onion. • Put the onions gently in approx. 1½ qts boiling water. • now add Gravy Master.

Boil at medium heat for about 45 minutes, until the onions are somewhat translucent. Add Lipton's Onion Soup Mix (do not cover the pot). Simmer for 30 minutes. Ladle a portion of soup, heavy with the onions, into serving crock. Cover crock with 1 slice of toasted Italian bread, 2 slices of provolone cheese and 1 slice of Gruyère or imported Swiss cheese.

Placement of cheese

Put the Swiss in the middle of the 2 slices of provolone. Put under broiler (about 6 to 9 inches from heat). When cheese turns dark and it starts to melt, wait a minute and take from broiler. It's ready to enjoy.

Henry Fisher of Lewes was asked to establish thirteen alarm posts following the river from Cape Henlopen, Mispillion River, Murderkill River, Bombay Hook, Port Penn, and further north to Philadelphia. The lower alarm posts were equipped with small boats and cannon.

In December, Esek Hopkins of Rhode Island was appointed commander-in-chief of the newly-created Continental Navy comprised of seven ships: two 24-gun frigates, the Alfred and the Columbus; two 14-gun brigs, the Andrea Doria, and the Cabot; and three schooners, the Hornet, the Wasp, and the Fly. Because the river was frozen, Hopkins' fleet had to wait in Philadelphia until February 11, 1776. Fearful that the Continental Naval Committee was "taking the Bread from their mouths," the Delaware River pilots asked Henry Fisher to be their spokesman. In response, the Naval Committee approved ten Delaware River pilots to serve as "scouts of the waterway" to send dispatches of enemy activity along the coast to Philadelphia throughout the war. [4] On March 27, Henry Fisher sent word that the British ship Roebuck and a tender had entered the mouth of the Delaware Bay. The Philadelphia committee immediately ordered four row galleys to report to the Lexington under command of Capt. John Barry, to "exert their utmost endeavors to take or destroy all such vessels of the enemy as they might find in the Delaware." Captain Lawrence with the Salamander and Captain Hause with the guard boat Eagle were sent to Lewes. The Eagle and supplies were to be placed at Henry Fisher's disposal.

Col. John Haslet

Soldiers under Col. John Haslet were also deployed to Lewes. On April 7, one of the Roebuck's tenders attacked a British merchant ship. Gunfire from the Delaware Continental Regiment and cannon fire from the merchant ship helped check the Roebuck. Haslet reported to George Read that he had the Roebuck's third lieutenant and three soldiers in custody. They had been taken from a tender about four in the morning after "the helmsman fell asleep [and] Providence steered the boat ashore." [5]

The pension records of Samuel Lockwood, a volunteer in the Delaware militia, describe the events:

At Lewestown, Sussex County, state of Delaware, early in the beginning of the year 1776, served under Capt. David Hall, afterwards Colonel Hall ... alternatively guarding at the lighthouse which was on Cape Henlopen (about the distance of one mile from Lewestown) and working on the fort at Lewestown ... This whole year was occupied by the company to which he belonged by guarding at the lighthouse and working as aforesaid, always taking their muskets, etc., with them. And whenever they heard two cannons (which was the signal), they laid by their laboring tools, seized their arms, and repaired to the point where there was danger apprehended and again, when the alarm was over, returned to their work unless the time for their relief had arrived. [6]

The Roebuck and the Liverpool began moving north. On May 8, 1776, thirteen row galleys and the Continental schooner Wasp attacked them below Chester, Pennsylvania. The exchange of fire lasted nearly four hours. At dusk, the Roebuck ran aground and the Liverpool was forced to anchor until the firing stopped. The next day, the Roebuck floated off the sand bar and the American row galleys resumed attack. Firing constantly, the Roebuck and Liverpool were chased six miles back down the river to New Castle, where they moored for the night. William Barry, an American prisoner on the Roebuck, reported that there were many shots betwixt the wind and water: some went quite through, some in her quarter, and was much raked fore and aft ... one man was killed by a shot ... Six were much hurt and burned by an eighteen-pound cartridge of powder taking fire, among whom was an acting lieutenant, and several were hurt by splinters. [7]

George Read wrote Caesar Rodney pleading for more powder and lead for the troops at Lewes.

Tinto de Verano

is a refreshing drink similar to Sangria.

However, there are fewer ingredients in this wine based mixed drink making it much easier and quicker to put together. Tinto de Verano translates to red wine of summer. In some regions of Spain it is common for locals to drink Tinto de Verano while tourists drink sangria.

ingredients

1/2 cup red wine (use a Spanish red wine if available)
 1/2 cup Sprite (or 7-Up) • 1 slice lemon

directions

Place three or four cubes of ice in wine goblet or highball glass. Add red wine. Top with Sprite. Garnish with lemon slice.

Greetings! I'm Thaddaeus. I'm a Neutered male, 5 year old black and white Domestic surrendered on 11/16. My person passed away after 5 years of companionship and I found myself at the BVSPCA panic stricken and terrified. It has taken the team months of patience and gentle kindness but finally I am making some progress. I now sit outside my teepee where I have been hiding for safety's sake! In order to continue with this improvement, I will need an experienced cat owner with a quiet home and time to continue the work. Are you up for the adventure?

3 Facts You Didn't Know About Presidents' Day

Tomorrow, we'll enjoy the annual celebration of Presidents' Day, a vague commemoration of all things presidential, one might think. Here are three things you might not have known about Presidents' Day:

Technically, it's still "Washington's Birthday"

According to section 6103(a) of title 5 of the U.S. Code, this Monday commemorates "Washington's Birthday," not "Presidents' Day."

The name change coincided with a Congressional initiative to attach federal holidays to the weekend, thereby creating an uninterrupted, three-day stretch of leisure time.

Presidents' Day is a brilliant stroke of branding

The ever-shifting holiday also happened to dance around Abraham Lincoln's birthday, which several states marked as a separate holiday on February 12. Retailers, eager to promote discounts on both days, seized on the name "Presidents' Day" to lure in shoppers regardless of which president they might happen to be celebrating. Gradually the catch-all term fell into common use.

It's also not quite a holiday

Calling it a "holiday" doesn't make it so. Yesware, an email analytics firm, crunched the numbers on 23 million emails circulating through corporate inboxes over the course of one year. Their finding: Open and reply rates on Presidents' Day exceeded other federal holidays, and even a typical workday.
