Billing error won't dim season!

Municipal Services Commission has been under-billing the NC Little League for lighting for more than 12 years. Now the Little League owes $17,000, which is one-third of the league's annual operating budget. According NBC news report "the electric was still used, it just was not billed. The electric still needs to be paid for," said Pamela Patone of Municipal Services. Joe DiStefano said in the report "we owe the money and we'll do our best to pay it back." Meanwhile there is a GoFundMe account set up to help pay for the bill. Please don't let this deter you from registering, as they will have an excellent 2017 season! They appreciate all of your support!

THE MOST EPIC BREAKFAST

You'll need...

2 (11-oz.) tubes refrigerated bread dough - 1 tbsp. Butter - 10 large eggs - 1/4 c. heavy cream - kosher salt - Freshly ground black pepper - 2 tbsp. finely chopped chives - 1 bacon, cooked - 1/2 lb. sliced cheddar cheese - 1 tbsp. melted butter - 2 tsp. poppy seeds - 2 tsp. sesame seeds

Easy fixn'

- 1 Preheat oven to 350°. Grease a bundt pan with cooking spray. Place bread dough into the bottom of the pan and pinch all ends together to form a single ring. Bake until golden brown and cooked through, about 25-30 minutes. Let cool for 5 minutes, then invert onto cooling rack to cool completely.
- 2 In a large nonstick skillet over medium heat, melt butter. In a large bowl, whisk together eggs and heavy cream. Pour egg mixture into the pan. Let set slightly then reduce heat to low. Drag the eggs with a spatula or wooden spoon to create curds. When the eggs are almost cooked to your liking, season with salt and pepper. Fold in chives and remove from heat.
- 3 Slice baked bread in half. On a large baking sheet, place one half cut side-down and the other cut side-up. Top the cut side-up bottom half with scrambled eggs. Top with cheese and bacon. Brush the other half with melted butter and sprinkle with poppy seeds and sesame seeds. Bake until the cheese is melted, 3-5 minutes.
- 4 Slice and serve warm.

One bundt pan sandwich can serve up to a dozen people, depending how hungry everyone is. So making a giant breakfast sandwich is the logical thing to do on a weekend morning when family and or friends are over. Would you rather spend your morning frying a dozen individual eggs? I don't think so.

- from the Journal of the American Revolution, by Kim Burdick

On June 15, 1776, within sight of British war ships prowling the river, thirty Delawareans met in the New Castle courthouse. The men squabbled about the need for the change in government recommended by the Continental Congress and with each other about a proposal to create their own independent state. A state composed of only three counties, all bordered by the Delaware River, seemed both stupid and dangerous, and Rodney, McKean, Read, and all other colonial leaders would be accused of treason against Britain if America lost the war. Eventually, it was decided that the Lower Three Counties of Pennsylvania would be free not only from Britain, but also from governance by the Penn family.

Caesar Rodney was now Delaware's highest ranking officer, and although due to be at the Continental Congress, William Adair, a resident of Sussex County, noted in his diary, "June 19-20, Colonel Rodney came to try Tories with 1,000 men viz Colonel Haslet's Battalion, also a fair representation of riflemen to reduce a Tory insurrection here. Witnesses examined for four days. Tories ordered to bring in their arms and ammunition." On June 23-25, Adair wrote, "Robinson, Manlove and Ingram fled to Somerset, are raising an insurrection at Snow Hill." [8]

On July 1, Thomas McKean angrily paid for a rider to hasten from Philadelphia to find Rodney. Delaware's vote on the Declaration of Independence was tied; Thomas McKean voting for, and George Read voting against. A second and final vote would be taken the next day.

Caesar Rodney wrote to his brother that he arrived in Philadelphia "in time Enough to give my Voice in the matter of Independence." [9]

Delaware was now asked to supply 600 men for a Flying Camp of militia units from

New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. They were assigned to guard the vulnerable coastline, protect the Continental Army's supply lines, suppress roving bands of Tories and act as a ready reserve when George Washington's army need reinforcement. 460 Delawareans were recruited. Their term expired on December 1, 1776. Two weeks later, Caesar Rodney's brother, Thomas, and thirty-five Kent Countians left Dover to join Washington and his men in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. In his diary, Thomas Rodney described Washington's crossing of the Delaware:

Our light Infantry Battalion (composed of the Dover company and four companies of Philadelphia militia under Captain George Henry) were embarked in boats to cover the landing of the Brigade. When we reached the Jersey shore we were obliged to land on the ice, 150 yards from the shore. The River was also very full of floating ice and the wind was blowing very hard, and the night was very dark and cold, and we had great difficulty in crossing but the night was very favorable to the enterprise ... about 12 o'clock the remainder of my company came in, and in the evening, we heard of General Washington's success at Trenton and that he had captured 900 Hessians. [10] During the crossing, Delaware Regiment's Col. John Haslet fell into the icy river. He survived, marched ten miles through the wintry blasts to fight the Hessian troops garrisoned in Trenton, then was killed on January 3 at the battle of Princeton.

Wartime activity in the Delaware River and Bay continued. A message was received from Jacob Bennett that he had been taken by a British ship of war south of Cape Henlopen and saw a local boat arrive carrying livestock for the British. On January 27, 1777, the General Assembly resumed session in New Castle. Orders for arresting Loyalists Boas Manlove and Thomas Robinson, Esquires, were read and laid on the table. In March, after evading several arrests, Manlove, Robinson, and colleague John F. Smyth, fled to the British ship Preston

Mardi Gras

Sazerac gotta get

1 Sugar Cube - 2½ oz. Diamond State rye whisky - 2 dashes Peychaud's bitters - 1 dash Angostura Bitters - absinthe - lemon peel - old-fashioned glass

Let's do it

In an Old-Fashioned glass (not a mixing glass; it's part of the ritual), muddle a sugar cube with a few drops of water.

Add several small ice cubes and the rye whiskey,* the Peychaud's bitters, and the Angostura bitters.

Stir well and strain into a second, chilled, Old-Fashioned glass in which you have rolled around a few drops of absinthe (no substitute really works, but you can try either a mix of Pernod and green Chartreuse, or Absente) until its inside is thoroughly coated, pouring off the excess.

Garnish with a twist of lemon peel (some insist that this be squeezed over the drink and discarded; don't be so picky)

gotta get Candy Manor gin

Lime juice - Lemon juice - Simple syrup - Orange flower water - Egg - Heavy cream - Soda water

Let's do it

½ oz. lime juice - ½ oz. lemon juice - 1 oz. simple syrup and 2 oz. Candy Manor gin into one glass

Add egg white - 1 oz. heavy cream and 4

drops orange flower water into the other glass

Combine glasses and add ice - Shake rigorously (at least 3 minutes)

Slowly strain into Collins glass, filled one quarter with soda water

Aren't I a gem?! That's why they call me Diamond! I am a 7 year old, spayed, female, long-haired white/brown tabby mix. I am a petite, shy, beautiful lady.....if you overlook my snaggle tooth! But I think it adds to my uniqueness! I like a quiet life, as I startle easily. I would prefer wet food to dry food and would do best in a quiet home with an adopter who has time to meet my needs and fuss over me. I was brought to the shelter after my owner died and I'm still working on settling in - won't you come meet me today? I would LOVE to go home with you!
