Roasted tomatoes

12 tomatoes, halved lengthwise, cores and seeds removed • 4 tsp olive oil • 1 ½ tsp balsamic vinegar • 2 large garlic cloves, minced • 2 tsp sugar • 1 ½ tsp kosher salt • ½ tsp fresh ground black pepper

Directions Preheat the oven to 450°
 Arrange the tomatoes on a sheet pan, cut sides up, in a single layer. Drizzle with olive oil and balsamic vinegar. Sprinkle the garlic, sugar, salt, and pepper over the tomatoes.
 Roast for 25 to 30 minutes, until the tomatoes are concentrated and beginning to caramelize.
 Serve warm or at room temperature.

Oreo Thins are exactly what they sound like, a thinner Oreo. The wafers are thinner, there's less creme (maybe "Half Stuff" didn't sound as good?), even the packaging is more slender. Does this mean we have dunk with skim milk?

1oz Geranium 55 gin
 1oz Bergamot juice/ puree
 1oz Maraschino liqueur
 1oz Strega liqueur
 2-3 drops of home-made apple bitters

NOW Shake all the ingredients over ice and strain into a cocktail glass
 Garnish: dry apple

The Crime and the Time The History of Criminal Justice in Delaware

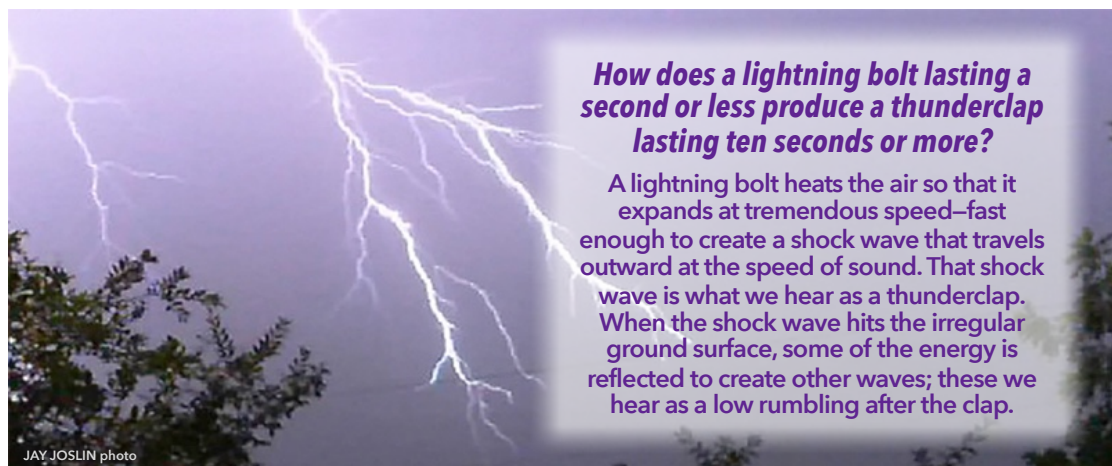

New Castle Court House Museum
Wednesday, August 19th 7pm
Guest Speaker: Michael Dixon

An illustrated look at the evolution of crime, punishment, and police work in Delaware from the colonial era to the 20th century. Stories of unheralded police officers, criminal escapades, whipping post, hanging, lynching, obscure methods of punishment, and imprisonment in old county jails. Compare how crime and police methods have changed by using little known stories in history.

Free and open to the public.

How does a lightning bolt lasting a second or less produce a thunderclap lasting ten seconds or more?

A lightning bolt heats the air so that it expands at tremendous speed—fast enough to create a shock wave that travels outward at the speed of sound. That shock wave is what we hear as a thunderclap. When the shock wave hits the irregular ground surface, some of the energy is reflected to create other waves; these we hear as a low rumbling after the clap.

SUMMER IN DELAWARE

Famous for saltwater taffy and other delectables, Dolle's Candy Store is as iconic a landmark as you'll find in Delaware's summer playland, Rehoboth Beach. Dolle's first arrived on the Rehoboth boardwalk in 1927 when Rudolph Dolle and his Greek friend and former employee, Thomas Pachides, joined forces. Pachides had worked at an earlier candy store run by Dolle in Ocean City, Maryland. He later ran ice cream and candy shops in Wildwood, New Jersey and Salisbury, Maryland before settling his family in Rehoboth in 1926 where he and Dolle re-established their friendship. The two ran Dolle's together for over 30 years. Occasionally, Dolle's expanded its ideal location at the foot of Rehoboth Avenue to include a lunchroom, a bowling alley, and even an amusement park. In 1960, Pachides took over sole ownership. He ran Dolle's until his death in 1985 at the age of 93
