Benefits & Opinions aired at pier workshop

Tuesday night was the moment many concerned residents have been waiting for...a chance to hear the City's take on the proposed new pier planned for the foot of Delaware Street. From the waters edge at the wharf, there would extend a 6' x 160' pier, 10' x 100' dock and 175 sq. ft. ramp.

During the past few years nothing has been more planned, discussed and rumored than this replacement for the "prisoner's pier" destroyed by Stormy Sandy of '12.

Debbie Tollett of Delta Development presented their findings of a study for Duffield Associates. The $7500 study saw increased tourism and the monies that might be spent by visitors. This drew criticism from "the floor", questioning if the data and numbers were from the entire State on just NCC. In fact they were County numbers.

John Morton, Chairman of the Kalmar Nyckel Foundation, addressed the nearly 100 anxious citizens as he read a portion of a letter the foundation wrote to DNREC supporting the proposed pier. While the Kalmar Nyckel spends most days in it's Wilmington port and many days in late summer in Lewes, he told the attendees that they welcome the return to New Castle. "We love New Castle", he echoed. While it's way to early too commit to a schedule, he mention they would dock in town for a week in May, possibly for a Day in Old New Castle, and some days in the fall. He noted that New Castle would be a preferred site to "rig-up" for sails downriver. Among the features available were the educational opportunities for visiting students, day sailing for tourists and private charters which have been proven successful in her past visits.

$800,000 has been earmarked in the Bond Bill. One of many concerns was the maintenance cost to the City once the pier was operational. City Administrator, Bill Barthel, itemized likely fees which total approx. $1500 per year. City personnel would handle the scope of maintaining the pier area...not much different the old pier. There is no plan to have any City employee to be a pier attendant.

The question of possible cost overrun was aired from the floor. Council President Linda Ratchford explained that contingencies has been built into the Bond Bill and City Administrator Bill Barthel reiterated that there was still a public bidding process ahead before any dollars could be placed in a contract.

What pleased many (but not all) was the revelation that Pennsville town officials had met with Council President Ratchford and Mayor Reese relating that if New Castle was successful they too would pursue a like facility that could, again, tie our shores together.

Two towns, one river... it's déjà vu all over again!

thank you Penn Farm CSA

As you know, as the retired superintendent of Colonial this past June, I have been supportive of this program in the planning stages last year and throughout the summer. As a participant of CSA this summer, my family has enjoyed the benefits of the farm as well as I have learned to cook different produce. In addition, I particularly enjoyed the conversations I had weekly with the students, who explained the produce for that week and at times explained to me what to do with them. I have learned how to deal with produce from organic farming and have exposed my family to various produce that otherwise would not have been on our table.

I am very proud to have been a member of the Colonial School District and a partner in the CSA project this summer. Our students are very lucky to have you and Mr. Reid as teachers in this project, in addition to Chef Poole and Chef Vaughn. I look forward to future partnerships!

Thanks for all you do for the Colonial students!

Delaware drivers enjoy lower than average auto repair costs and gas is cheaper here than in most other states, but Delaware still ranks as the 7th most expensive state in the country to operate a motor vehicle.

Chris Kahn, a research and statistics analyst for BankRate.com says one factor in particular accounts for the high price of owning a car in Delaware. "The primary reason is insurance," said Kahn. "Your gasoline costs are actually not too bad especially for the Northeast, repair costs are actually below average, it's really the insurance costs that push you up to the top."

Iowa is the cheapest state in the nation for car ownership while Wyoming is the most expensive.
