Remembering

Charles Parks

Last week we marked the tenth anniversary of the passing of one of Delaware's greatest artists, sculptor Charles Cropper Parks. Parks was born in 1922 and passed away October 25 2012. He began his education in a one room schoolhouse in Talleyville, northwest of Wilmington, Delaware. After World War II, in which Parks served as Second Lieutenant, he continued his art studies at the University of Delaware and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Art.

Roast chicken is a great dish for family dinners and parties. Preparing is as simple as adding in some herbs and roasting in the oven. Here's Julia Child's favorite roast chicken and juicy honey-and-lemon-glazed roast chicken.

you'll need

1/4 cup plus 1 tsp honey • 2 tbsp plus 1 tsp fresh lemon juice • 2 tbsp soy sauce • Three 3-pound chickens - Salt 9 large rosemary sprigs • 9 garlic cloves, quartered 1 lemon, cut into 12 wedges

two easy steps

Step 1 Make oven happy at 450°. In a small bowl, combine the honey, lemon juice and soy sauce. Set the chickens on a large rimmed baking sheet and tuck the wing tips underneath. Season the cavities with salt and stuff each one with 3 rosemary sprigs, 3 quartered garlic cloves and 4 lemon wedges. Brush two-thirds of the honey glaze over the chickens and season lightly with salt. Roast in the middle of the oven for 30 minutes.

Step 2 Reduce the oven temperature to 325°. Rotate the chickens in the pan and brush with the remaining glaze. Roast the chickens for about 45 minutes longer, until the juices run clear when the thighs are pierced; turn the pan halfway through roasting. Transfer the chickens to a carving board and let rest for 15 minutes. Carve the chickens and serve.

Parks

Sculptures by Parks are usually naturalistic and convey gestures of subtle beauty and tranquility. They seek to embody universal human values usually through uplifting, confident, and serene poses. Many sculptures seen in public spaces in and around New Castle County, Delaware were created by Parks, including The Brandywine River Museum's Boy with Hawk; The Student at the Newark Free Library; Father and Son in Spencer's Plaza between King and French Street in Wilmington;

Apprentice near the Brandywine River in H. Fletcher Brown Memorial Park; and the sculpture of Governor Russell Peterson near the Riverfront Nature Center. He is perhaps best known nationally for his large Madonna sculptures, the first of which, Our Lady of Peace, was displayed in Rodney

Square before traveling to its current home in Santa Clara, California. A second large Madonna is now in Indiana at St. John's Passion Church and a third Madonna can be seen in New Castle, at Holy Spirit Catholic Church.

There are many Charles Parks works in New Castle, at the Senior Center, Library and at the Court House Museum, which has a whole exhibit room of his statues and sculptures. They have several presidents, a minute man, a boy scout (modeled after Gerald Ford when he was a scout) and a few others on the second floor exhibit room. Visit Tues-Sat 10-4:30 and Sunday 1:30-4:30.

Of the seven most densely populated states, Delaware comes in next with a population density of 500 people per square mile, according to the World Atlas. The state ranks a surprising number six on this list. Why surprising? That's because Delaware's population hasn't even reached the one million mark yet, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.
