Volunteer Day at Historic Penn Farm was a Success!

On October 19th, around 30 volunteers congregated out front of the bank barn at Historic Penn Farm. The air was just crisp enough to remind everybody that winter is on its way. Led by farm manager, Becca Manning, the task for the day was to remove black plastic sheeting from a four acre agricultural field. The volunteers worked for nearly four hours and were able to clear the field of the plastic to enable tilling and seeding of winter cover crops. What will be planted next year? Pumpkins for the fall!

Thank you to Viridian Energy who was the spear head of the project as well as William Penn High School's junior ROTC program.

Problems fell the stately Elm

The American Elm on Delaware Street had two major problems. 1) It was adversely affecting the foundations of two houses on Clouds Row; 2) It had significant decay issues caused primarily by truck traffic damage about 12 feet up.
